ATTORNEY KIDNAPPED FROM LOBBY OF HOTEL

GREENVILLE, TEXAS, January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Harold Mulks, of Chicago, counsel for two alleged L. W. W. convicted at Shreveport of vagrancy charges, arrived at Greenville today on a Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train, upon which he was placed last night by a band of men who had severely flogged him after kidnapping him from his hotel at Shreveport.

The men, Mulks said, directed the conductor not to let him off the train "this side of Dallas." He plainly showed marks of the flogging.

THREE MEN ENTOMBED BY MINE CAVE-IN

SURANTON, PA., January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—The rescue parties at the National mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company, worked in delays throughout the night trying to reach the three men entombed since yesterday.

The workers were in charge of W. W. Inglis, president of the company. Late last night they came upon the body of Michael Kelly, a laborer. This spurred them on to new efforts and led to the hope that the missing men might be found nearby.

The change of rescuing the three men alive grew fainter as the hours passed. The fact that no sounds have been heard from the section of the mine, where the men were trapped, led to the belief that they were dead.

HARDING URGES STATES TO AID IN ERECTING MEMORIAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Erection in Washington of the National Victory Memorial building, commemorating the American forces in the world war and complying with the wish of George Washington for a great educational institution here, is endorsed by President Harding in a letter to all state governors and the commissioners of the District of Columbia, urging official participation of the states in the project.

Replying to the letter from the president, the governors of New York, Maine and Delaware, and the district commissioners have already indicated their desire to co-operate in the endorsement and to bring the matter to the attention of the citizens of their states.

Writes To Governors
In his letter to the governors, under date of January 9, President Harding said:

"I am writing you to enlist your interest with mine in the Washington and Victory Memorial building, which is in course of erection in Washington. As you doubtless know, the structure is intended to be a worthy national memorial of the services of our armed forces in the world war, and also to represent a compliance with the wish of General Washington that a great educational establishment should be provided here. These two purposes have been united in the plans for the memorial building, in whose erection it is aimed to have all the states participate. The great auditorium designed as a meeting place for national and international gatherings, will have its ceilings studded with gold and blue stars; a blue star for every survivor in the war, a gold one for each who gave his life in the service; with the initials of every man marking his own star. This will be produced a true service flag of the nation, with its millions of stars, and that it may be given the character of a truly national memorial it is wished that each state should provide for the stars for its own men, in addition to any other participation it may choose to assume.

True Shrine of Patriotism
"To make this structure a true shrine of national patriotism, representing for our country the sentiments that Westminster Abbey and Saint Paul's church attest to Englishmen and the Pantheon and the Invalides to Frenchmen, this is the ambition of the earnest men and women who are carrying forward the work of the George Washington Memorial Association. The association is incorporated by law of congress; the national government provided the site for the structure and recently its corner stone was laid.

"I have assurance that the city of Washington will give generous assistance toward erection of the memorial; and would be glad if each of the states would see fit to give the endorsement indicated by some official participation. The project has appealed strongly to me, and I know to patriotic men and women all over the land, as one of such inspiring nature as to deserve generous encouragement."

IRISH PACT RATIFIED BY SOUTH IRELAND

BELFAST, January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—The strike on the Irish railroads, which had been called to take effect at midnight tonight, was postponed one month as a result of today's conference between representatives of the workers and the employers in Dublin, according to news received here this afternoon.

DUBLIN, January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—The Anglo-Irish treaty creating the Irish free state was unanimously ratified today by the south Ireland parliament.

Eamon DeValera and his supporters, who opposed the treaty in the Dail Eireann, were absent.

A provisional government was constituted, comprising Michael Collins, William Cosgrave, Eamon J. Duggan, P. J. Hogan, Finian Lynch, Joseph McGrath, Professor John MacNeill and Kevin O'Higgins.

The entire business of ratifying the treaty and setting up a provisional government occupied less than 20 minutes.

Not a murmur of dissent marred the smoothing of the proceedings, which were entirely of a formal, perfunctory nature with the exception of a few brief speeches.

Parliament met under Clause 17 and 18 of the Anglo-Irish treaty, which made the members of the Irish parliament elected under the government of Ireland act of 1920, the body which should ratify the treaty and take measures for constituting a provisional government.

The entire list of 128 members had been summoned, but only those who favored the treaty attended.

The agenda contained a resolution calling for ratification of the treaty and eight ministers appointing a provisional governing body. The list, which was duly ratified by the meeting, is identical with the list of ministers of the Dail Eireann, with the addition of Professor John MacNeill, speaker of the dail, and Finian Lynch, who was one of the secretaries of the London delegation.

The list of ministers does not include Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail, nor George Gavan Duffy, the Dail's minister of foreign affairs, presumably because foreign affairs, although they would come within the competence of the free state when constituted, will not be formally handled by the provisional transitional government.

Major Miller, who arrived here yesterday from Duluth, Minn., will fly around Isle Royal and nearby islands in lumberjacks' Lake Superior, seeking some trace of Maher, who was last seen near Cloudway in an open motor boat. The plane will be used in conjunction with ice breaking tows working out of this port.

If Maher is alive and marooned on an island, it is expected he will endeavor to attract attention by means of smoke or other signal.

Now Where Was Columbus Really Born?

LISBON, January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America, was born in Portugal, the Portuguese academy of sciences was told yesterday by Professor Ribeiro, a member.

It had been an historically accepted fact that Columbus was born at Genoa, Italy. The statement of Senator Ribeiro comes on the heels of an announcement by the Right Rev. Monsignor Rey Soto on his arrival in New York, recently that Columbus was a Jew. The prelate said that this was proved by documents discovered at the home of ancestors of Columbus in Spain. He said Columbus hid the fact that he was a Jew because of the deportation of people of that race from Spain by Ferdinand and Isabella.

Harding Not To Interpose Objections To The Plan

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Announcement that Postmaster General Hays will shortly retire from the cabinet was made at the White House today.

After a 40 minute conference with the postmaster general, President Harding said he could not "well interpose any objection" to Mr. Hays' retirement to become head of a national association of motion picture producers and distributors.

The president personally gave out the following statement:

"The postmaster general and I have been discussing at considerable length the proposal which has been made to him to become the head of a national association of motion picture producers and distributors. If the arrangement proves to be, when the details are worked out, what it seems to be, I can not well interpose any objection to Mr. Hays' retiring from the cabinet to take up a work so important. It is too great an opportunity for a helpful public service for him to refuse. I shall be more than sorry to have him retire from the cabinet where he has already made so fine a record, but we have agreed to look upon the situation from the broadest viewpoint and seek the highest public good."

Hays Announces Plans

Mr. Hays made this statement: "With the president's consent, I have decided to undertake the work suggested by the motion picture producers and distributors. No contract has been accepted as yet. I am assuming, of course, that a satisfactory contract will be possible and one which will make certain the carrying out of the high purposes contemplated by this great industry."

The postmaster general in discussing the matter informally said on date for his retirement had been decided, on that matter being left open awaiting his negotiations with the motion picture producers.

Mr. Hays in further discussing the proposition informally expressed confidence that satisfactory arrangements could be worked out with motion picture interests. He said that as soon as possible he would confer, probably in New York, with representatives of the motion picture industry who have been negotiating for his services.

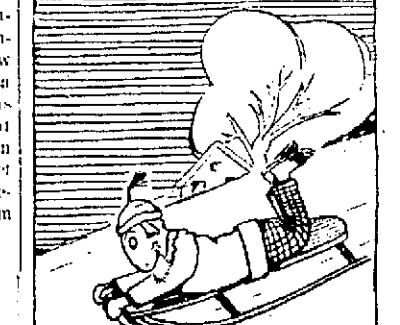

Mr. Hays refused to discuss the subject further.

Jury Out 10 Minutes; Moore Guilty

It required a jury in Common Pleas Court less than ten minutes late Friday afternoon to return a verdict finding Oscar E. Moore, a former local real estate dealer and dry detective, guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses as charged under the indictment upon which he was tried.

The case went to the jury at 4:20 and one ballot settled the question and the verdict was reported to Judge Thomas through Foreman John Ideiter before ten minutes had passed.

Moore was jointly indicted with Walter J. Yost, also a former local real estate agent, which charged them with defrauding Mrs. Catherine Binder out of $150 which she claimed to have paid Yost through false representations made by the defendants in connection with the sale of an option which Yost held on her property situated at 1820

Chillicothe street. Mrs. Binder testified that she was induced to buy the option back from Yost after the latter had brought Moore to her home as a Marion, Ohio, business man and arranged to make a deal for her property. She said Moore told her he would not deal with Yost because he was a bad man and urged her to secure the option and he would deal with her direct, going so far as to make an offer of $15,000 for the property.

Ralph Resinger was called to the stand by the prosecution and told of being defrauded of $250 in a similar manner by Yost and Moore in connection with an option held by Yost on his mother's property situated at 2507 Gallop street but his testimony relating to this transaction was later ruled out and withdrawn from consideration of the jury.

On his conviction by a jury last October, Yost was sentenced to the penitentiary where he is now confined.

The Bible And Evangelism

By John Collins Jackson

Here is where the Bible comes into its own. In the supreme work of regenerating human nature, it is the book of all books. The sacred books of the ethical, or the non-Christian religions, which we used to call heathen religions, afford some comfort and hope to hundreds of millions of human beings, but they furnish no parallel in life and character to Jesus, the Christ. We acknowledge that paganism has had its saints: Socrates, Marcus Aurelius, Epictetus, Seneca, Buddha and Confucius. But impartial students of comparative religion, like Max Mueller do not hesitate for one moment to crown Jesus Christ the Lord of all. Of pagan saints, Socrates was undoubtedly the greatest and the best. Jean Jacques Rousseau, the famous French savant, was certainly far enough from prejudice in favor of Christianity. But he was competent as a judge, and comparing Socrates with the lovely Nazarene, he said: "If the life and death of the son of Sophronius be those of a philosopher, the life and death of the Son of Mary are those of a god."

I believe that the pagan annals themselves are not slow to admit the superiority of Jesus over all other ideals in history. Where they fail, say us is, and with manifest reason, too, that Christians generally are sorry examples of the life and character of Him who ended Himself, alternately, the Son of Man, and the Son of God. But the point we have in mind is that the Old Testament, with all its imperfections as compared with the New Testament, was the only Bible that Jesus had; and that His Gospel, and the apostolic letters of the New Testament, together with the Old Testament, the 66 books combined into one volume for convenience sake, present to the world the only single book which may appropriately be called as a whole, "The Word of God."

The quaint old poet, George Herbert, breathes a prayer that we may well offer:

O that I knew how all thy lights combine.

And the configurations of their glories!

Seeing not only how each verse doth shine,

But all the constellations of the story.

If God does not speak in many, perhaps most of the utterances of this sacred Library, then He has not spoken at all to mankind. Coleridge gave the unguishable evidence of the Book's moral and spiritual supremacy, when he said, "I know that the Bible is inspired because it finds me." Yes, it also found John Bunyan, and it made the vulgar thinker of Bedford, the immortal allegorist of the world. The Bible found Orville Gardner, and Jerry McAuley, and it turned these drunken river thieves and penitentiary convicts into the saintly evangelists of Western street.

New York, respected John honored by the whole of the world-metropolis. The Bible has found the greatest intellects as well as the most abandoned reprobates.

Few men in history have left a greater impress upon it of varied nature, but mainly for good, than Augustine, the son of a heathen father, and a Christian mother, born nearly 1600 years ago. Comely in person and gifted in mind, he had yielded to the deadly enticements of sin till he reached his own degradation, yet despair of ever finding release from the fetters of passion that held him prisoner. But in his anguish of soul, he chanced upon Paul's words: "Not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof." He says that instantly there flashed through his mind and soul the light of salvation, and the desponding sensualist became the rejoicing saint. A miracle? Yes, verily; but only one of millions like it both before and since, and common today.

Roundly speaking, 400 years ago, a gay, handsome young nobleman, with wealth and genius, indulged in all the excesses to be found by a student in the University of Paris. After years of wild dissipation, in a crippled soldier remonstrated with him in the words: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? The light of heaven brought him to his knees, and the disillusioned Francis Xavier gave his heart to God, and became the first great missionary to China, India and Japan, where his works abide today.

In 1510, a poor and pious young monk, found himself in the Holy City of Rome, seeking peace through penance. Vain were his efforts. Till the text, "The just shall live by faith," flooded his soul with light and love from heaven. Then Martin Luther became the mighty herald of mental and spiritual freedom. The Bible's immortal tropes of salvation, thru its words of evangelism, are the attestations of its moral and religious supremacy; not fancied infallibility in written records, any more than in mortal pontiffs, or creeds, or councils. By their fruits shall you know what is inspired, and how much it is inspired, in all of God's revelations in Scripture or nature.

Not all the left-hand pitchers who get out on the Road to Fame from Major League baseball club whizzed as did William Cooper, who is nationally famous now. A year or so before Cooper was started up, Ed Stanger and associates did a clever job of selling him to the Cleveland Indians, to Stanley Robinson and Roger Bresnahan for use on the St. Louis National staff. Zmich failed. Yet he netted the Marion treasury about three times as much as was secured from the sale of Cooper for whom Columbus put up $1,000.

FEATHERS INVADE NEW FIELDS

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK.—Feathers are doing the most unusual things. All season they've been in fantastic little fringes from the heads of evening gowns.

They're curled gracefully around the crowns of hats and in wraps, certainly as warm as they were beautiful, have hugged the shoulders of pretty women.

But as spring approaches they venture even one thing more—hair! This Suzanne Talbot stuff, like the hat, is made entirely of the plumage of the peacock. Feathers in a hair are something new! And very lovely.

Frangible, delicately beautiful, look like hair and are designed for evening wear between seasons.

The round full crown of the hat and the straight trim are covered with copper-colored feathers, effectively irregular at the edges.

to obtain forgiveness from God, through His duly appointed agent (John 20:23) for having offended Him. To obtain such forgiveness they must accuse themselves frankly and fully of ALL their offenses, have a sincere sorrow for them, promise to repair any injustice done, and with God's help never again to offend Him. All these conditions must be complied with or the confession is worthless. Read all about Confession in "Catholic Religion" by Martin, at book stores.

C. M. BURTON ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR SHERIFF

C. M. BURTON

Cecil M. Burton, the well known East End grocer, 3301 Walnut street, announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Scioto county subject to the action of the voters expressed at the primary election to be held August 8 next.

Mr. Burton has been an active party worker since even before arriving at his majority. He is of fine physique and capable of conducting the arduous duties of the office in a creditable way. He is also one of the city's best business men, is a worker and his friends think he would conduct the office with intelligence, guarding the interests of every citizen.

He is an active member of a number of orders and civic associations.

Mr. Burton has been a believer in Portsmouth and Scioto county, has erected a modern business house and home which is evidence of substantial citizenship, that he is here to stay and enjoy and be part of the growth and prosperity of the city.

His friends claim that no man stands better with the working men and the business men of the city than he, because of his fairness, strict attention to business and his genial disposition. These friends are said to welcome his candidacy because they know he will use the same practical and judicious methods in conducting the office for the people as he does his own personal business.

Mr. Burton is a Republican of sterling worth, always taking an interest in party affairs and doing his bit though never before an applicant for office.

Mr. Burton in his own behalf in soliciting the support of the Republicans of Portsmouth and Scioto county says that he will conduct his campaign in a clean, fair and honorable way, that he cherishes the friendship of his opponents, that he will not sling any mud, that if defeated for the nomination that he will cheerfully support the winner and the whole Republican ticket. Mud slinging, he says, is seldom used by Republicans who at heart desire the success of the ticket.

He further promises that if nominated and elected to the office of Sheriff that he will surround himself with competent deputies to assist him in discharging the duties of that important office in a manner that they should be and in accordance with the statutes.

Your Support is Respectfully Solicited.

Fanning Taken To Columbus To Face Highway Robbery Charge

Ernest Fanning, 20 years old, malleto, pal of Lorin Mershon, both of whom were arrested on the West Side a week ago, was returned to Columbus Friday by Detective L. H. Blum to face a charge of holding up and robbing H. D. Zimmerman, 65 East Fifth street, of a watch, pocketbook and cash, all of the value of $107 on the night of Nov. 9.

Following the arrest Fanning confessed to robbing Zimmerman, according to the officers, who turned the prisoner over to the Capital City authorities after it became apparent he had committed no crime here upon which to base a charge.

Mershon is believed to have been implicated in the robbery of the Steelton branch of the Citizens' Trust and Savings company in South Columbus on Dec. 22 while the officers take the opposite view in respect to Fanning who is not thought to have been connected with the crime in any way.

WEAK; RUN-DOWN

Carolina Lady Got So She Could Just Drag—"Cardui Built Me Up," She Declares.

Kernersville, N. C.—In an interesting statement regarding Cardui, the Woman's Tonic, Mrs. Wesley Mabe, of near here, recently said: "I have known Cardui for years, but never knew its worth until a year or so ago. I was in a weakened, run-down condition. I became draggy—didn't eat or sleep to do any good; couldn't do anything without a great effort. I tried different remedies and medicines, yet I continued to drag.

"I decided to give Cardui a trial, and found it was just what I really needed. It made me feel much stronger soon after I began to use it. I began to eat more, and the nervous, weak feeling began to leave. Soon I was sleeping good.

"Cardui built me up as no other tonic ever did. "I used Cardui with one daughter who was puny, felt bad and tired out all the time. It brought her right out, and soon she was as well as a girl could be. We think there is nothing like Cardui."

Do not allow yourself to become weak and run-down from womanly troubles. Take Cardui. You may find it just what you really need. For more than 40 years it has been used by thousands and thousands, and found just as Mrs. Mabe describes.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—As I have never come to you for advice, I have a question. I would like for you to solve for me. I have been going with a fellow since last June and have been true to him in most every way. I never go out at nights only with my girl friends and never stay out late. What do you think of girls that go to him and tell him they see me with other fellows at the late hours of night, when I am home in bed? Do you think they are jealous of me, or just want to have something to tell him to cause trouble. Do you think he should pay any attention to them? I never say anything to him about what other girls say about him for I really love him and want no trouble. I am waiting for your earliest reply.

BLONDE.
If your friend doesn't believe what they tell him, why worry about it, but if he would rather believe a bunch of gossipers than he would you, the sooner you get rid of him the better off you will be. A friend like that is worse than no friend at all.

Dear Dolly—I read an item in your column asking about the pronunciation of the state of Arkansas, which I am sorry to say is incorrect. It was called Ar-kansas at the beginning of the Civil war, but when the state of Kansas changed from a confederate to a federal state, they changed the pronunciation to Ar-kan-saw.

Will you kindly publish this correction as there seems to be many people in doubt as to this pronunciation. A READER.
The two pronunciations were mentioned in the other letter.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, hollow cheeks, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets regularly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

CONFESSIONS OF A MOVIE STAR

CHAPTER LXXVII — I GET A NEW KIND OF KISS

YOU don't understand, May. I can say no more."

"I can—I do understand! And I can put your doubt into words!" I stormed. "You believed that I couldn't possibly have arrived. I couldn't be a star in the McMasters constellation—and remain—the girl—you could marry."

And then came Jimmy Alcott's reply to my daring:

I was seized suddenly in his arms. My head was on his shoulder, his kiss was on my lips. And it was totally different from any kiss I had endured in the movies.

I forgot myself. I forgot my blinded eyes. I forgot everything except the security of Jimmy's arms and the tenderness of Jimmy's kiss.

I did not see myself as acting a part in a play.

I forgot my pride. I whispered: "I wasn't fair to you, Jimmy. I haven't been fair. I tried to convince myself that you couldn't act your part so marvelously if you were not yourself, cruel at heart!"

And then a horrid memory chilled me. I escaped from his arms and stared again.

"Ghetti! She wrote you daily at the camp!"

"My dear! My very dear! Ghetti was out of a job. And going to London! She persecuted me for names of cinema companies!"

I held on my hands, Jimmy seized them and we talked softly until the buzz of the phone brought us back to the realities of the time and the place.

Jimmy answered the call. It was from the specialist's office. His secretary sent word that the doctor would be with me in half an hour. My nurse must be in attendance to take off all the bandages.

"It makes no difference what his verdict may be?"

"I am pledged, May."

"It makes no difference to you if I must go the rest of my days with a broad red band down one cheek? No difference if I grope to my grave with a cane? No difference if I hide behind black glasses with huge rims? You love beauty as much as I do. I think, Jimmy. There may be years and years of ugliness and helplessness for me!"

"You talk as if it mattered! As if anything mattered except the sweetness and the cleanness of your soul!" He would have taken me in his arms again but I motioned him away.

"Wait for the doctor's verdict!"

"I'm not going to leave the house. I'll wait down in the drawing-room."

Then he went out of the room and I caught my breath hard. I had decided my future for myself. Never would I know the comfort of his arms again—if my beauty were gone forever.

I had my own pride.

A SPRING HAT IN TAFFETA

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—Very small and very bright as to color are the taffeta hats shown for spring.

Brilliant things they are—with, usually, a bit of embroidery, a compact pompadour, fancy tassels or an ornamental thrust through the crown on one side.

Like this taffeta hat, silken headwear very often takes the form of a lamp-shade. The one shown is of light green, embroidered in black silk thread, shot with silver.

myself that you couldn't act your part so marvelously if you were not yourself, cruel at heart!"

"I am pledged, May."

"It makes no difference to you if I must go the rest of my days with a broad red band down one cheek? No difference if I grope to my grave with a cane? No difference if I hide behind black glasses with huge rims? You love beauty as much as I do. I think, Jimmy. There may be years and years of ugliness and helplessness for me!"

"You talk as if it mattered! As if anything mattered except the sweetness and the cleanness of your soul!" He would have taken me in his arms again but I motioned him away.

"Wait for the doctor's verdict!"

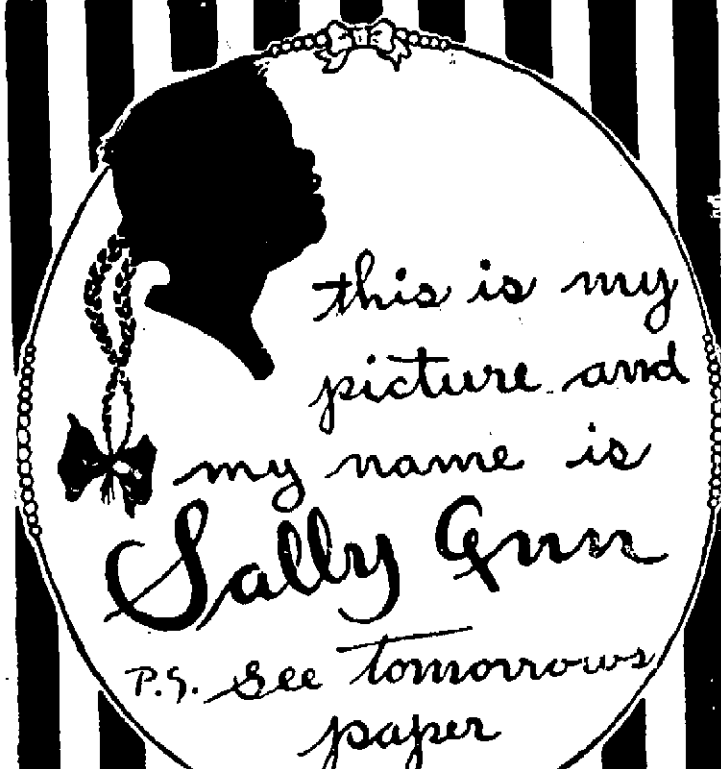

"I'm not going to leave the house. I'll wait down in the drawing-room."

Then he went out of the room and I caught my breath hard. I had decided my future for myself. Never would I know the comfort of his arms again—if my beauty were gone forever.

I had my own pride.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Nick grabbed him and set him on the nest of eggs.

THE next thing the Twins found was a nest of eggs. How it happened that they didn't break I don't know, but there they were perfectly whole, not a crack in one of them. That's the way it is with Whizzy Tornado—he can shatter whole towns with one whiff of his great breath, and yet it often happens that he sets things down miles off, so very gently that it wouldn't waken a sleeping baby.

The eggs were crying and making queer sounds. "What is it?" asked Baskins, bending low.

"Oo-ling-hoo-wang-choo!" wailed the eggs. "That's too bad!" said the fair-named severely. "It must be awful."

But the Twins understood. "They are Choochin China eggs," said Nancey, "and they want their mums, they say. They'll be chickens by tomorrow if they are only kept warm. They are just beginning to hatch."

"Well, well! Here's a pretty kettle of fish. I mean nestful of eggs," said Baskins. "Does anybody see a hen anywhere?"

Nobody did, but a large red rooster happened to strut by just then, little suspecting what was in store for him.

Nick grabbed him and set him on the nest of eggs, much to that gentleman's amazement. "Chick, chick, chick," he chuckled, getting redder and redder in the face. "What's all this? This is an outrage! Let me go, I tell you!"

"Yes, tomorrow, my dear sir, tomorrow," nodded Baskins. "You may as well be of some use while you're here. Be good and I'll send you home as soon as I can."

And Mr. Rooster obeyed, although he kept muttering to himself and chucking away down in his throat. He told his friends afterwards that he was never so mortified in his life. Playing hen was bad enough, but Chinese chickens!

A HAT THAT ADDS HEIGHT

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—There is, just now, tremendous demand for the wearing of plumes standing upright at the front of the hat.

And the fancy is quite all right for the woman whose face is full enough to make lengthening effects.

It is a welcome novelty for the short woman.

This black taffeta hat emphasizes the effect of the upright ornament by employing the narrow back and front brim, widening at the sides.

Sinners Are Never Bored.

"I never knew a woman who regretted marrying a rake," said Mrs. Thibston. "I have known women who married good, straight men, and lived with them for life quite successfully—but in their hearts they knew the loss of adventure. Though they dared not go to it. It's the sinners who married bad men who are bored."

"I believe all actors are married as soon as they are born. I never met one who was a bachelor. Not even at a week-end." "Oh, well, they must say something in self-defense, mustn't they?" I shall be very fond of him," said Mary, compressedly. "You will have to, to make your married life endurable." I think the one thing a woman never forgives is having nothing to forgive," returned Mary. "From 'Wandering Fires' by Dolf Wyllarde.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a friend indeed." —Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1042 1/2 Byram St., Los Angeles, California.

The battle was short thereafter. Harold was never a match for Bill. The latter's hard fists landed into his face blow after blow with grim reports in the silence. Harold's resistance ceased; his body quivered and he still, remembering Virginia Bill leaped to his feet.

But Harold was not quite unconscious. But one impulse was left—to escape; and dumbly he crawled to the door.

No weapon remained in his hand. "I'll get you yet, you devil," he screamed, almost incoherently. "I'll get you yet and kill you—you can't go away!"

And out he staggered.

"Virginia," Bill called. "Where are you?"

From the dark, far end of the cabin he heard the answer—a voice low and cautious such as is sometimes heard from the lips of a sick child. "Here I am, Bill," she replied. "I'm with a stray shot."

XXVII

BILL groped his way to Virginia's side.

His hands told him she was lying huddled against the wall, a slight, pathetic figure that broke the heart within the man. He knelt beside her, then felt for a match.

But before he struck the match he remembered his foe without; he would be quick to fire through the window if a light showed him his target.

Even now he might be crouched in the snow, his rifle in his arms, waiting for just this chance.

Bill snatched a blanket from the cot, shielded them with it, and lighted the match behind it.

"He can't see the light through this," he told her.

He groped for the fallen candle, lighted it, and held it close. "You'll have to look and see yourself," he said. "I can't tell her. You remember—of course."

Yes, she remembered his blindness. She looked down at the little statuette of red on her left shoulder.

"I can't tell her," she said. "It went in right here—give me your hand."

She took his warm hand and rested it against her wound. Somehow, it comforted her. "Close to the top of the shoulder, then," he commented.

"But there's nothing I can do—it's not a wound I can dress. It's cleaner now than anything we've got to clean it with. The only thing is to lie still—so it won't bleed."

"Do you think I'll die?" she asked him quietly.

"I don't think the wound is serious in itself—if we could get you down to a doctor," he told her. "It isn't bleeding much now, because you are lying still, but it has been bleeding pretty freely. It's just a flesh wound, really. But you see."

Her mind leaped at once to his thought. "You mean—it's the snow, isn't it?" she questioned.

"It means death—that all it means. I don't care on my own account."

"Then don't care on mine, either. All at once her hand went up and pressed his face. "Hold me, Bill, won't you?" she asked. "Hold me in your arms."

The man's arms tightened around her. He lowered his lips close to hers. "I love you."

She drew his head down and down until her own lips touched the flow of his words. "I love you, Bill," she told him. "No one but you."

Only once to cover the crack of the door and build up the fire. When he returned, her warm little flood of kisses was as if he had been absent for weary hours.

But her thoughts had been busy, even in this moment. All at once she drew his ear close to her lips. "Bill, will you listen to me a minute?" she asked.

"Listen, I'll listen to every word."

"I think I know the way—at least a fighting chance—to life and safety."

XXVIII

EVERYTHING depends first," Virginia said, whether or not you can crawl through the little window of the cabin.

Bill remembered his experience in the smoke-filled hut and he kissed her, whispering that would be easy.

"The next thing—see Harold's snowshoes in this room?"

"So it depends on Harold, does it? I believe his snowshoes are here, Harold left rather hurriedly—and I don't think he took them."

"What everything depends on—is getting out. The longer we stay here, the more certain death is. I know I can't walk and you can't see. Bill, Harold is waiting, right now—probably in the little cabin where he sleeps—for a chance to get those shoes. He's helpless without them. As soon as it gets light enough for him to see, I want you to go on the cabin door. Turn at once into the brush at your right, so he can't shoot you with the rifle. Then come around to the side of the cabin and re-enter through the window."

"The moment he thinks you are gone, he'll come not only to get his snowshoes but to clear over me. I know him now. I can't understand why I didn't know him before. And then—we've got to take him by surprise."

"And then?"

"Quickly, by the way, she told him the rest of her plot.

Harold walked into the trap set by Virginia.

"I'm coming for my snowshoes, Virginia," he told her. "Then I'm going to go away." He tried to draw his battered, soddy lips into a smile.

"Come in and get them," she replied. Her voice was low and lifeless. Harold stepped through the door. And then she uttered a curious cry.

"Now!" she called sharply. There was no time for Harold to dart back. He was in the trap. A might force descended upon his body.

In less than a minute he was bound helpless.

"My God, what are you going to do to me?" he asked.

"Why, Harold, you are to be our little truck horse," Virginia replied as she handed Bill more things. "You are going to put the sled and show the way down into Bradleburg."

XXIX

WHEN the dawn came full and bright over Clearwater, Bill and his party were ready to start.

When Harold had been thoroughly covered and his full instructions given him, the things had been put about his ankles and removed from his wrists, and he was permitted to do the packing.

That procedure was exceedingly simple; all available blankets were piled on the sled and made into a bed for Virginia, and the six candles and such cooking utensils as were needed were packed in front. And then they had a short but decisive interview with Harold.

"I won't go—I'll die first," he cried to Virginia. "Besides, you don't dare to use force on me; you don't know the way and Bill can't see. You know if you kill me you'll die yourself."

"Fair enough," Virginia replied sweetly. "But take just this little word of advice, Bill and I were all reconciled to dying when we thought of you—and we won't mind it now if we're sure you are going along. And Bill will tell you that I can shoot straight. Perhaps you learned that fact last night."

They lengthened the thing that tied his ankles together, giving him room for a full walking step but not enough to leap or run.

They put on his hands a pair of awkward mittens that had been stiffened by mud and water, and lashed them to his wrists.

Then they slipped the thing of the sled across his shoulders and under his arms like the loops of a yoke. They were ready to go.

"I haven't much hope," Bill told Virginia when she was tucked into the bed on the sled. "But it's the only chance we have."

They stepped across the snow, their arms like the loops of a yoke. They were ready to go.

Local Schools Near The Top State Director Says

Members of the school board are in receipt of the following explanatory letter from H. H. Hiegal, State Director of Education:

A representative of this department visited the Portsmouth high school December 23, 1921, and we take pleasure in transmitting through you to your board of education a brief statement covering the most important points touched upon in his reports.

We are pleased to note the care which has been exercised in the matter of obtaining properly equipped teachers and in bringing the pupil-teacher ratio to a satisfactory basis.

Your school without a doubt now stands very near the top in these important respects among high schools of the state.

Your situation as regards adequacy of classroom facilities is at the present somewhat cramped but in view of the extension of your building, which is in process of erection, this feature of the situation in due time will be corrected.

The substantial character of the building which the school occupies entitles your community to warm commendation, especially in view of the provision for its extension which has already been referred to.

A number of the teachers were visited, nearly all of them teachers new in the school this year, and possibly with one exception they were found to be doing creditable work. Their inexperience naturally shows itself in their work, and yet they may be regarded as giving promise of attaining to such a standard of efficiency as commensurate with the general excellence of the school.

Their need of careful, sympathetic supervision, however, should not be overlooked.

The most apparent opportunity for improvement appears to lie in the direction of increasing the program of activities which the high school provides. Vocational interests, in our judgment, should be more liberally provided for, especially those involving opportunity to prepare for the industries.

Irish Pact

ernment of the Irish free state faces a serious difficulty in the threatened strike of railway men called for mid-night tonight. President Griffith and his cabinet discussed the matter at the Mansion House yesterday and there is still hope that it may be averted at the last moment.

The managers of four Dublin roads last night made an offer through Mr. Griffith which never was rejected by the men; but if they remained at work the companies would find employment for three months for all those deemed superfluous to the operation of the roads under an arbitration award.

This would give the provisional government time to get firmly established in the hope that opportunity for wider employment would occur meanwhile.

The managers of four Dublin roads last night made an offer through Mr. Griffith which never was rejected by the men; but if they remained at work the companies would find employment for three months for all those deemed superfluous to the operation of the roads under an arbitration award.

This would give the provisional government time to get firmly established in the hope that opportunity for wider employment would occur meanwhile.

Many New Homes To Go Up On Athletic Park Site

Admitted To Priesthood 33 Years Sunday

When Rev. J. E. McGuirk, beloved pastor of Holy Redeemer church holds his weekly services tomorrow he no doubt will be directed by unusually large audiences at both masses as he will celebrate his thirty-third anniversary to priesthood.

It will be 33 years ago tomorrow when he celebrated his first mass in 1889. He will deliver a special sermon tomorrow.

Farm Bureau Holds Annual Meet Tuesday

Tuesday at the United Brethren church the annual meeting of the membership of the Scioto County Farm Bureau will be held. Every member should be present and all farmers in the county are invited to attend.

Already close to 175 farmers have sent in acceptance cards which means that close to 200 will be in attendance.

All who expect to attend and who have not sent in acceptance cards or did not receive one should telephone to the Farm Bureau office for reservations for the luncheon to be held at 11:30 o'clock in the basement of the church. The main address of the meeting will be given by O. D. Owen of Berea, Washington county, O. The speaker is a member of the executive board of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. He was formerly a college professor and is now a full fledged farmer. Mr. Owen will talk on the work of the Farm Bureau, county, state and national. Other subjects of great interest will be discussed.

Athletic Park, the scene of many a diamond battle, will be the site for many homes next summer, when the park will be filled to a level of the street. A contract for the filling of the historic spot has been let to Chas. C. Horv and Cecil Miller, and work will be started early next spring. Incidentally Mr. Horv has purchased a half interest in the Brookway tract, directly south of Athletic Park and this will also be filled, which will give space for the erection of more than twenty-five houses.

It will be necessary to construct an extension to the big sewer in both Athletic Park and the Brookway tract before the fill is entirely completed. This, it is thought, will be started before the real filling in process begins. Horv and Miller, who have been doing considerable grading and filling along Galena Pike, have contracted for a steam shovel, which is recommended to be the best made. It will arrive here shortly and will be used in tearing down the hills along Mahert Road, owned by Messrs. Horv and Miller.

Fish Become Intoxicated; Heavy Fines Meted Out

CIRCLEVILLE, Jan. 14.—Probate Judge Adkins handed out stiff fines today to two men caught operating a 35-gallon still on Darby Creek, where the fish became intoxicated. Granville Birchler was fined $1,000 and costs and his alleged helper $200 and costs.

Mr. Calvert Sells Ground To John S. Rapp

Another important deal was closed on the West Side Saturday when Thomas G. Calvert sold his 15 acres of ground east of Navvoo and facing the paved roadway, to John S. Rapp.

This ground connects with the Rapp Addition, Hillcrest and City View, and is regarded as a very valuable one.

It is Mr. Rapp's intention to subdivide the ground into building lots in the Spring.

Plan Celebration For W. And J.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 14.—Upon the arrival home yesterday of the Washington and Jefferson college football team from Pasadena, Cal., where January 2 it held the University squad to a scoreless tie, plans were completed practically for a community celebration for the eleven next Thursday night. Henry Newman of Chicago, a former W. & J. tackle, will act as toastmaster at a banquet incident to the celebration.

Greeks Celebrate New Years

Greeks in Portsmouth and throughout the world were busy Saturday celebrating the Greek New Year. Celebrations in honor of the event were held in Greek homes today when hospitality was lavishly extended. It is the one day in the year when the Greeks forget business cares and enter into the spirit of the day, the gladness of New Year Day.

Poincare Gives Views On Cannes Conference

PARIS, January 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Raymond Poincare, selected by President Millerand to form the new French cabinet, gives his views on the Cannes conference in today's Revue des Deux Mondes.

While not an absolute opponent of commercial negotiations with Russia, M. Poincare does not approve of giving them "the solemn consideration of a conference to which the chiefs of all European governments are summoned, those of Russia and Germany in the front ranks."

He continued "Wilson was called an idealist and a dreamer. The covenant of the League of Nations, however defective, expressed at least some precise ideas and in fact, despite the regrettable defect of the United States, that institution has not failed to render service. But with the Cannes conference we plunge into the unknown."

Want Right To Enforce Payment. With regard to reparations, he writes: "It is much less important for us to receive tomorrow two or three hundred millions more than to assure for ourselves tomorrow and later maintaining the level of our debt and the right to enforce its payment."

M. Poincare favors the Franco-British pact, but on terms of absolute equality. "Before contracting that union, otherwise most desirable," he says, "it would be well to proceed as in 1904 to a general liquidation of the difficulties outstanding in the Franco-English alliance. It is indispensable that the voice of France be able to speak as freely as that of England." (An Anglo-French agreement disposing of outstanding questions between the two countries, notably with regard to their rights in New Foundland, Egypt and Morocco, was signed April 8, 1904.)

Plane and Organ Keyboard. The keys of an organ require light, sun. They go yellow because this requisite has been denied them. The keyboard should not be covered, except when the room is being swept.

A cloth damped with milk is good for keeping the keys in proper condition. Care should be taken that there is not too much liquid on the cloth, which should be used to cleanse the keys and then rubbed dry with any smooth white cloth.

Salaries Have Increased

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—The salaries of presidents and faculty members in state colleges and universities have increased fifty per cent since the school year of 1913-14. John J. Tigert, commissioner of the bureau of education, department of the interior, asserted today in an address before the eighth annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges.

"In the college year 1913-14, the average salaries of presidents of the state institutions was $5,219. In 1921-22 an average is $8,891," Mr. Tigert said.

Justice and Injustice. The only true way to make the mass of mankind see the beauty of justice is by showing to them in pretty plain terms the consequences of injustice.

No, Not That Kind. "Dar ain't no reason for a prophet to expect honor in his own country or anywhere else," said Uncle Eben, "if he's a kind of prophet dat hands around tips on boss races."

Art Note. X-ray examinations show that a lot of the supposed works of old masters are fakes. We might add that a majority of the real works of the old masters are fakes, also.

Too Much to Ask. Comedian—"Why did you break off your engagement with the leading lady?" "Fringedlan—" "Because she had the cheek to demand that her name should be printed on the wedding invitations in bigger and blacker type than mine."—London Mail.

Burns and Scalds. In the treatment of superficial burns or scalds a convenient remedy for relieving the pain will be found in powdered bicarbonate of sodium. Moisten it slightly with water and spread it over the burn.

The Absent-Minded Professor. The professor was deeply absorbed in some scientific subject when the nurse announced the arrival of a boy. "What—what?" stammered the professor absently. "Why interrupt me— isn't my wife at home?"

Last Minute Tag Buyers Were In Evidence Saturday

Motorists flocked to the Prechard garage today to obtain their new 1922 tags. Persons driving their machines with old tags on or after Sunday, January 15, will be hauled into court, according to Chief Distel. The state automobile department has sent out word to this effect and say their effect must be rigidly obeyed. Local motorists have been tag buying for two weeks and a large percentage of them have equipped their machines with the 1922 plates.

Shoe Lore.
Many superstitions are connected with the shoe; for instance, it is thought unlikely to put either shoe on the wrong foot. Because Augustus Caesar was nearly assassinated by a mutiny one day when he put on his left shoe first, a saying has arisen that the right "shoe" must be put on first unless its owner wishes to court misfortune. Pythagoras, old Greek sage, told his disciples to put their left foot into their bath first. In Anglo-Saxon marriages the father-in-law gave the bride's shoe to the bridegroom who touched her on the head with it to denote his lordly authority.

Beaver Bank Officials On Trial Monday

W. A. Russell, former president of the now defunct Beaver Bank, Waldo W. Russell, former cashier, John P. Russell, E. H. Craig and W. N. Ferguson, representing a Columbus oil firm, indicted by a Pike county grand jury during the October-November session are expected to appear before Judge Dill at Waverly Monday when their cases will be assigned for trial.

Wednesday, Dec. 14, the five men were arrested in Columbus by Pike county officers and on being returned to Waverly all five pleaded not guilty to the indictments alleging making of false entries, misapplying credits of the bank and issuing fraudulent certificates of deposit. They were released on bonds of $2,000 each and ordered to appear in court Monday Jan. 16, to have their cases set for trial.

The failure of the bank followed by long hearings held at Chillicothe, where causes of the failure were investigated.

W. A. Russell and Waldo Russell, it is claimed, made false entries in the books of the bank to "cover up" losses.

John P. Russell, Craig and Ferguson are implicated in the failure and bankruptcy case through a Columbus oil concern, which firm had considerable dealings with the bank.

P. H. S. NEWS

A large body of students witnessed the regular class basketball games held in the High School gymnasium Friday. The girls' games were the curtain raisers. The Junior girls showed up in fine style, defeating the Senior girls. The majority of the Senior girls are on the Varsity squad and this leaves only a small number for the class team.

The Freshman team seemed to have lost some of their usual speed for they permitted the Sophs to win their game 7 to 5.

The Junior-Senior boys' game was very close. At the end of the second half the score was a tie, 6 to 6. After playing two minutes extra, neither team had been able to gain a point. The second time netted the Juniors one field goal, making the score 8 to 6. For the last two or three games the Sophs seemed to have been "under the weather." The Freshman team wrestled the game from them by one point, the score being 4 to 3.

Will Take Steps To Protect New Stadium

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 13.—Ohio State University is to begin spending $200,000 for flood protection and beautification of the new Ohio Stadium in the spring. The river-improvement program, funds for which will come from regular legislative appropriations, will extend over a period of years. With the $27,000 now available, University officials will purchase equipment and begin dredging the Olentangy river in the spring. Ultimately a levee will extend for 4844 feet along the eastern bank of the Olentangy, while a 400-foot dam will extend across the river south of the stadium site. The levee will have a top width of 70 feet and will drop to the water's edge in two terraces, each 50 feet wide. Forty feet of the top width will be devoted to boulevard with a 15-foot parking space on either side. The beauty of the whole will be enhanced by landscaping.

Fans All Set For Blair-Moore Scrap

Main Bout—Nig Blair-Eddie Moore.
Semi-Final—Suter-Price.
Six Round Prelim—Foy-Young.
Four Round Prelim—Fischer-Jack Major.

There you are, fans. It's the menu for the fight party that will be given Monday night. Twenty-eight rounds of real scrapping, served in the Palace R. style—clean sport, and plenty of action.

Nig has shown that he can fight and though he has been booked with the best of this part of the country has to offer, he has laid them all out, and done it against some mighty stiff opposition especially in the last encounter, when Kid Layman of Eddie Moore's home town, proved a rubber man who knocked him down with only one exception. That was when the referee finished his count of ten.

If predictions can be counted on, Moore will prove the most clever boxer and the hardest hitter that has yet stepped into the arena with Nig. The Huntington fans are backing him. They are confident that their man will be the winner.

Nig has done more real training in the past week than he ever did before, and he is in the best possible condition for the bout. He realizes that he will meet a worthy opponent in the West Virginia pugger and that he will have to put all he has in his punches to stop the lad from Huntington.

The preliminaries on Monday's card will be up to the standard of the current pugners in previous battery night cards with the men well matched and willing to only things up.

Thucius Ruddy will be the neutral in the ring and will, as usual, keep things going.

The fights Monday night will be in the Massie hall, corner of Second and Market streets. Doors will be open at seven o'clock and the sale of tickets will start at the same time. Ring-side tickets will cost $1.75 and the price of general admission will be $1. Those having general admission tickets will be compelled to stand during the show as no seats have been installed. The first prelim will begin at 8:30.

Selby Vets, N. B. Griffin captain, Roger Selby, Chas. Freeman, Oils Font, Eddie Hook, Fred Leroy.

High School Faculty: Prof. Ecles captain, Prof. Appel, Coach McCombs, A. K. Wheeler, E. E. Selig, C. D. Walton, Wm. Massie.

The Selby Vets have hit their old stride, and won five games in two days, defeating the Selby Leaders 21-10, 21-10, 21-9. The second game was some sizzler and in doubt till the last whistle. It really should have gone to the Leaders, for they played some game, working together like cogs in a machine, especially Peterson and Metcalf. Windremmer and Stevenson starred for the Vets.

Selby Vets: Roscoe Donahoe captain, Homer Selby, Goldard, Windremmer, Stevenson, Debo.

Selby Leaders: Stewart, McClegg, Peterson, Ladd, Powell, Hauke.

Carp Angling For The Bout

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(By The Associated Press)—Rug followers, contending with Tex Rickard that another match in America between Dempsey and Georges Carpentier would be a financial fizzle, were inclined to believe today that such a scrimmage might be staged with fair profit.

There have been reports from time to time that the Frenchman again might like to face Dempsey and this is confirmed by dispatches from Carpentier's camp abroad, after his victory over Cook. The Australian heavyweight, Dempsey's manager said the champion was ready to defend his title any time the guarantees were posted.

Carpentier is still the super-fighter of Europe, having promptly disposed of his English, French and Colonial heavyweight opponents. While his decisive defeat by Dempsey came as a surprise to Europe, he has declared that if he were to meet the American again he would adopt different ring tactics. He indicated he would box at long range and seek to wear down his heavier opponent to a point where a knockout could be handed without the peril of retaliation in a toe-to-toe mixup.

If Georges stuck to his proposed plan of boxing Dempsey at long range it is probable that European spectators would witness a longer contest than Carpentier has staged in the past.

Owing to financial conditions abroad, attendance and gate receipts would not likely approach those of Jersey City. Dempsey, however, of no worthy opponent for a bout, summer and might be willing to go abroad for considerably less than he received from Rickard for facing Carpentier.

City Is Proud Of Clever Team

Chillicothe people are very proud of their high school basketball team, which bids fair to be one that will have to be reckoned with by forecasters when possible awards of honors at the interscholastic tournament, to be directed by Ohio Wesleyan University, are up for consideration. The "Chilli" speedsters are expected to dip into Ohio University's tournament, also.

The "Easy Intermediates" suffered defeat at the hands of the McKinley Stars in the Manly gym. The Stars winning 23 to 8. The lineup and summary:

Fischer Ready

"Glimmie" Fischer says to Marco George that he is ready to enter the ring against him any time, anywhere, any way.

Select Mobile

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 14.—Mobile was today selected as the training camp this season of the St. Louis American League baseball club. The announcement was made here by Robert Quinn, business manager of the club.

With The Pugs

Over in New York last night Gene Tunney won from Battling Levinsky and with his victory goes the light heavyweight championship. It was Tunney's fight all the way.

Champion Bunay Leonard will defend his title against Rocky Kansas in Buffalo on February 10. Last year in New York Leonard hit Kansas so hard he knocked him into Iowa.

In Syracuse, N. Y., last night Joe Lynch knocked out Pat Johnson, of Trenton, N. J.

In Youngstown last night Danny Frush knocked out Joe Thomas, of Rochester, in two rounds.

Neale Is Some Nifty Sport

Earl Neale, the Washington and Jefferson coach, may not have taken all of his gear to California for a report, carried in from Pittsburg, the other day, indicates that he decided himself in a very light blue suit and sported a yellow cap one afternoon that he had his Presidents in Piraterville for an important game. The inference is that he was arranged in such style in order to be picked out easily from his place on the bench by whoever was in charge on the actual field of play.

Will Be Near Home

Mary Sullivan, left-hand veteran pitcher, who has found a haven with the Toledo A. A. club, won't be very far away from home when at Columbus, Indianapolis or Louisville. He's from Higginsport, a small town on the Ohio river between Cincinnati and Portsmouth.

Has Right Idea

Olga Smith, Ohio Wesleyan's next football captain, said the other day that he has no present intention of trying to do any coaching after he graduates. He is digging in at business administration study and wants to be qualified to take a place on the staff of a big corporation.

New Boston Boys Lose; Girls Save Day

Couch Stivers' basketball boys of New Boston high school counted on an easy victory at Ironton Friday night and counted wrong for Ironton took them into camp by a score of 22 to 7.

The honor of New Boston high was upheld by the girls' five. Ironton girls being defeated 17 to 13 in a close hard fought contest.

C. Rutledge at forward was the star for Ironton. He made most of the points for the winners. New Boston's guards failed in their efforts to keep him covered and he got down the floor many times for baskets.

Schwabacher, center on the New Boston girls' five, was the star in the preliminary game. She was all around the floor and proved a crack shot when it comes to getting the baskets. Ironton had a lead when the first half ended but that only caused New Boston to fight the harder. In the second half the New Boston girls used a five-player defensive and did not allow Ironton to score a single point while they slowly piled up points that put them in the lead and gave them victory. The lineup and summaries:

A GROWING AND HEALTHY HABIT

THE sale of savings certificates is reported by the local postoffice as being real brisk.

This is good news. It furnishes substantial hint that the era of speculation and extravagance is on the decline.

It is risking nothing to say that in the past seven years millions of dollars have been lost by Scioto county citizens in "securities" that were guaranteed to return fabulous dividends, and that other millions have been squandered in ways that brought neither profit, nor comfort.

Savings certificates are a prime investment. They are just as good as gold, they are tax free and yield five percent interest. They have the old and desirable feature of the war savings stamp in that they may be redeemed before maturity, without loss of all the interest.

The impression, however, is not to be cast away that there is something of a loss to the public welfare in the discontinuance of the war securities. They were more within the reach of all and the thrift stamps were a considerable inducement towards saving. They made a sort of a game that many people found enticing and altogether beneficial.

MAY THE END BE THE SAME

THE struggle in the Daily Freeman, over the ratification of the agreement to create an Irish free state, reminds of a tempest in a teapot.

There was a vast deal of fuming and bubbling but the result was a delightful concoction. The wiser council prevailed, after a long and animated debate. Perhaps, had it not been for the long distance support given to de Valera and his following from this city, the end might have come sooner and with far greater approval to unanimity. However, that is neither here nor there in the glorious result.

Ireland has, finally, after seven hundred years of heroic struggle become a free state. She can now govern herself and make her own future. The wisdom and discretion with which she governs herself will determine as to whether or not she shall become an entirely separate and independent nation. In all but the shadow, is she that now.

So quite well can her people afford to abandon the ever seething memory of wrong and injustice and devote their superb energy and talent to building up through orderly processes a happy and brilliant country.

To that consummation all the world will certainly wish them fair voyage.

THE MAN AND THE THING

TRUMAN NEWBERRY, who is right to sit in the senate of the United States was assailed because of the corrupt use of fabulous sums to secure his election, appeared before that body and pleaded total ignorance of the use of money in his campaign, neither denying, nor affirming that money was corruptly used thereabout.

There is this to say about that: If Newberry was so entirely ignorant of the methods used in his behalf then he is too utterly innocent and unsophisticated to be a senator.

However, the main point is not the man himself, but the means that brought about his election. They have not been unknown in Michigan senatorial elections heretofore, but they are none the less to be reprobated for that. Buying an office either by one's self or through relatives and supporters is the deadliest blow that can be struck at freedom. It is a crime of which there can safely be neither forgiveness, nor condoning.

Indisputably it is proven, aye, admitted, that sums, corruptive in their value were expended to secure the election of Truman Newberry to the senate of these free United States. That one fact condemns both the man and the awful thing perpetrated in his behalf.

Poor old farmer gets it again. "See how eyes have dropped."

One can not agree with Senator Borah all the time, nor even for any substantial part of the time, but can admire him all the time, nevertheless, because he is one public man that has the courage every minute to talk and act as he thinks.

Guess, after all, the Irish politicians are not materially different from the American brand. Their bark is a good deal more ferocious than their bite.

Going to have another conference at Washington so Lloyd George may be placed on exhibit thereat.

Hardest thing to have bad weather in this part of the vineyard. Look at Wednesday. It blustered, snowed, and froze, and then ended in serene skies and balmy breezes.

The project is to have a game preserve in every county, but the preserve in Scioto county.

A little freezing and thawing is the best argument for good roads.

Congress continues steadily on its job of doing nothing. For which much thanks.

Disappointed.

My little niece came home from school rather late the other day. On her mother's questioning her as to what kept her so long, she exclaimed: "Oh, mother, a horse fell down, and they said they were going to send for a horse doctor. And what do you think? It wasn't a horse doctor at all. It was only a man."

In Kentucky.

Having learned the important date when the United States mint was established and the reason why invented, a grammar school pupil in Kentucky, answering the question, "What were two important institutions established in Washington's administration?" wrote: "Mint and girl!"—National Monthly.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, January 14.—Molva's hall is Hell Kitchen. Delmonico's. There are no glittering chandeliers. Jacobean silver, paneled ceiling, marble floors or a sombre brocade—yet Molva's has a certain flair in this gang infested district where men rule by brawn.

Waiters in clean and freshly ironed jackets are not skilled in servile diplomacy nor do they converse in polite French idioms but they have a knack of jilting outstretched arms dizzily high with dishes and hurrying guttural orders toward the kitchen. Also Mr. Molva himself told me that each jacks a punch.

The table tops are bare and about them group the flowers of Hell's Kitchen aristocracy. The girls with rubily rouged lips, roll their stockings with a little more abandon and there is about them a gay insolence—a mask to hide life's realities.

The atmosphere of the place is coldly remote and metallic despite the strident echo of song, the noisy banter and reckless bonhomie. One feels that any moment there may be a sudden and oppressive silence—followed by the clear click of a pistol. For Hell's Kitchen lives and dies by the gun.

The men are coarse and leering. They are given to contemptuous mutterings and cynical laughs. Their friendliest kind of talk is flooded with epithets of the vulgar. And when they speak of authority that have the cold blue ring of brass.

At one table sat a man sanguine of countenance with a narrow ugly face and heavy nose. He was in a beer. Murky humour and his vis-a-vis with frosty bleached hair kept her hand on his arm and in a vacant voice continually proclaimed him as "her dearie." When he pushed away and left her she only tossed her head and paid the check.

Strong air lights sputter above the diners, a mechanical slot piano jingles popular airs, strange shadowy figures come and go. At my right a man in a twitching haze nervously bared his arm and pushed the plunger of his needle home unabashed. An ancient croak came in deliberately bubbling and the crowd hooted. The spirit of Hell's Kitchen was epitomized in the sign over the cashier's cage: "We Trust No One."

In reading over what I have written about Hell's Kitchen I am reminded that the brutal fact is many times deceiving. On our block is a foreign workman—a sullen, brutal beetle-browed appearing fellow one would be frightened to meet on a lone dark street. Yet the other morning he was weeping over the mangled paw of a stray alley cat.

New York is big enough but the California spirit exists in heralding its bigness. There is that ancient myth about its floating population—some times placed at 150,000, but more
